

A person is standing on a surfboard in the middle of a body of water, holding a long pole. The sun is low on the horizon, creating a bright, golden glow and a long, shimmering reflection on the water's surface. The sky is filled with soft, wispy clouds, and the background is a dark silhouette of trees. The overall mood is peaceful and serene.

YANGGA DYATA - WALKING ON COUNTRY

Advisory - Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders are advised that this page contains the names and images of deceased persons.

The Horsham silo and flourmill site celebrates the little-known but locally significant story of a Wotjobaluk warrior's story of leadership, resilience and significant legacy. The mural was created by Australian photo realism artist Smug.

Titled Yangga Dyata which means Walking on Country, Horsham's silo art celebrates the story of Wotjobaluk warrior, Yanggendinyanyuk. Yanggendinyanyuk (whose name means 'his walking feet' in Wergaia language) was born in 1834 in Wotjobaluk Country in the Wimmera Region of North-Western Victoria. His life was marked by outstanding achievement and leadership but was marred by significant loss and grief. Yanggendinyanyuk was celebrated for his role in finding the Cooper-Duff children in the 'Lost in the Bush' story and for his part in the first Indigenous cricket tour to England. Tied together with the adjacent flour mill image of Yanggendinyanyuk's totem the Black Cockatoo the images portray the strong linkage to country that the region has.

Horsham Rural City Council commissioned Juddy Roller street art company to engage world renowned street artist 'Smug' to transform Horsham's silo and flour mill as a tribute to Yanggendinyanyuk.

Smug said: "I was very excited to be asked to paint the silo and work with Aunty Jennifer and BGLC, HRCC and the Plazzer family. I am truly honoured to be chosen to celebrate Yanggendinyanyuk with such a large and prominent mural. I hadn't painted a full figure for many years so I welcomed the challenge of painting a composition outside of my comfort zone. My hometown is as close to Horsham as you can get in size and similarities, and its name Nowra even translates to "Black Cockatoo", so I felt incredibly at home throughout the installation of the mural."

Traditional Owner Aunty Jennifer Beer, Cultural Consultant for the project said: "This painting has only just scratched the surface of the history of Yanggendinyanyuk and his life. The mural has blown me away! It's a legacy my children will get to know, and my grandchildren, as well as our community generations. For myself, I only got to know about him when I was in Grade 3 and I was reading a reader to my grandfather and he told me the story of my ancestors. There are many community families that are tied to the Lost in the Bush and First 11 cricketers, this mural will help the stories to be told."

The Yangga Dyata artwork is a collaboration between Horsham Rural City Council, Barengi Gadgin Land Council, owners of the silo Mario and Frances Plazzer, Creative Victoria and Juddy Roller.
